- 5 Sacramento County Sustainable Business Program - Kelli Fry, Sr. Marketing and Development Specialist, Chase Stremsterfer, Permit & Environmental Regulation Consultant

Kelli Fry reviewed the goals of the Office of Economic Development: to support innovation and improvement of the business climate in Sacramento County, and to create programs and services that result in job retention and brand the County as an attractive place to do business.

The Business Environmental Resource Center (BERC) within Economic Development offers free consultation to assist business with navigating permitting and compliance with local regulations.. There is a Sustainable Business Program within BERC to promote and recognize businesses that are committed to environmental sustainability. Approximately 800 local businesses have been certified as sustainable by Economic Development over the lifetime of the program. Certification criteria includes water conservation, air quality and transportation, pollution prevention, energy conservation, green design, and waste reduction. Program incentives are recognition, access to business rebates and incentives based on industry, and networking opportunities.
